

In almost every inning, either by a single, a pass, or an error, and the fast work of the Mariners on the bases.

Seltz, the first man up, hit a safe bouncer to centre and promptly stole second. Salve fanned Pender, and all Jinas could do was to send a hot one to Carroll, who touched the bag. The crowd began to breathe easier then, and warmly applauded when Titman squeezed Jackson's long fly. The Colts went down in order. Heffron sent a fly to Fetzner; Reeve followed suit, and Titman's drive was fielded to Haas by Ruhland.

In the second Fetzner was safe on Salve's failure to handle his infield tap, and Ruhland nearly sacrificed him by a bunt to first, Carroll assisting and Siebrle covering the bag. Then Salve struck out Manion and Phil Hinton, and was warmly cheered. This was the third time Salve had struck out. He hit No. 2, Wallace, and did not land on Louck's speedy ones and struck out. Siebrle rapped out a beauty to right centre, but Hinton nailed him at second. Manion receiving the throw, Gettig drove a fly to Fetzner. No runs.

In the third Louck went out Gettig to Carroll. Seltz popped a fly to Siebrle, but Captain Pender ambled to first on four wide ones. Haas again hit to his fellow first-bagman, and was out. No runs. For Richmond Carroll was hit by the ball, but was called out by Byron a moment later on a bad decision. Cowan sent a fly to Seltz, and Salve was fielded out at first by Manion.

Hope That Faded Away.

In the fourth Salve fanned Jackson, but Fetzner rapped a good one to Heffron's field, and took second when Reeve held. Ruhland's drive to Carroll, after a magnificent running pick-up, Manion sent one to Reeve and was retired to Carroll, and again the fans took a deep breath and cheered. Then the Colts aroused hope, which was doomed only to be dashed. Heffron contributed a single as an opener, and Reeve advanced him with a pretty sacrifice bunt to Pender. With but one down and a man on second, the out look was promising for a score. The man drove a hard ball to the right field, which was out at first, advancing Heffron to third. Bob Wallace came up, treading softly and carrying a big stick, but it was not for Louck. Again he never touched the elusive twists of the big fellow, and the dreams of tallies vanished.

In the fifth Hinton cut the circumference of the ball and retired, but Louck looked dangerous, and was given a free ticket. Seltz sent a high fly, which Wallace got after a sprint. Pender gave out, but Hinton dropping the ball, but throwing him out. Gettig's bouncer to Pender was fielded to first, and Carroll got a scratch hit, but was thrown out, Hinton to Manion, in an attempt to swipe a cushion. No scoring.

How Byron Gave It Away.

Things got busy in the sixth, and so did Umpire Byron. Jackson singled to left and stole second. Fetzner hit put him on third, and Ruhland's beautiful bunt, which Cowan fielded to Carroll, advanced him to second. Seltz was out critical, but Byron sent Jackson over the plate on a claim that Gettig had interfered with him. Wallace fielded the ball to the plate, and Jackson had no chance to score. If there was any interference now, if any could be found who saw it. Protesters were vain. Byron rigidly stuck to his blunder. Salve stopped further scoring by striking out Manion.

Richmond got energetic in her half. Cowan drove a fly to right, which was caught by a pretty run, but Salve's mean bouncer was juggled by Manion and he was safe. Heffron's slow one to Louck advanced Salve to second, and he scored on Reeve's timely hit through the infield. Seltz's timely fly to right, which was caught by Titman, tried to land, but struck out. Score, 1 to 1.

In the seventh, after Hinton and Louck had sent fly balls to Fetzner, which he choked, Seltz got a life on his bouncer. He stole second and was advanced to third on Pender's drive. Haas drove one to short, which was fielded to the plate, but too late to catch Seltz. Pender had stolen second and attempted to throw, retreating the side. Salve by Reeve's throw, retreating the side. Score: Norfolk, 2; Richmond, 1. The Colts evened up in their round with the clubs.

After Wallace had down out to Seltz, Siebrle again singled and was advanced to third on Gettig's clean drive to the outfield. He scored a moment later on a wild pitch. Carroll was again hit by Louck, and both he and Gettig were advanced on Cowan's fly to Haas, an effort at a double play failing. Salve struck out, but the score was a tie.

Mariners Fight Hard.

Norfolk got dangerous again in the eighth. Jackson fanned, but Fetzner was safe on Reeve's error, and took second also. He went to third when Salve fanned. Heffron sent a fly to Wallace, and ended the agony. For the Colts, Heffron left off with his second single, and Reeve again cleverly sacrificed him to second, but with a man on second and only one down, Heffron went out. Pender to Haas, and Wallace was down, Ruhland to Haas.

The crew was after that game good and hard, and did not resist until it was called. In their last round at bat Hinton was again hit by Salve's second error, and Louck went out, third to first, advancing him. Seltz popped up to Reeve, and up sailed Skipper Pender, with determination in his eye, and his bat.

He looked so dangerous that Cowan signalled Salve to let him walk. He did, and Haas came up, but sent one to Gettig, who threw Pender out at second.

Richmond, too, wanted that game badly, and went after it in their last turn. Siebrle, for the third time, rapped out a hit, and Gettig struck out. Manager Reeve then sent in Pitcher Hobbs to bat out the winning run, and made a two-base hit by Seltz, a sensational stop by Haas, who knocked the ball down and touched the bag, retired him. Haas leaped nearly three feet into the air and knocked down a screamer, that looked good to land against right field. Fetzner's second stop was a surprise to everybody. It was the star play of the game. Cowan sent one to Pender, which the skipper tossed to Haas, and it was all over.

Umpire Truby a moment later, very properly called time, after the inning being then 6:40, and darker than usual at that hour.

EVANS'S BATTING WINS TWO GAMES

Lynchburg Team Gives Roanoke Double Dose Before a Great Crowd.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

LYNCHBURG, VA., August 24.—With 300 Roanoke rooters in the grandstand and nearly 1,000 local fans, each trying to outdo the other, Roanoke went down before the Shoemakers here today in both games of a double-header, the first being 4 to 3 and the second 2 to 0. Kline pitched the first game, and he was unusually wild, walking seven men. He was, however, very steady with men on bases, as a single in seven innings would have scored a run, and in the other two, two would have brought the same result to the Tigers. Morrissey was not hit hard, though the locals found him in the pinch. In the last inning the score was tied, but a single by Kirkpatrick and a triple by Evans scored the winning run with none out.

Vernelle's wildness in the first inning cost him his game. McKenna, the first man up, walked. Bowen was out on an attempt to bunt the third strike. Hooker died, Clayton to first, and then Anthony walked. Kirkpatrick drew four, and after McKenna and Anthony had both stolen bases, Seltz drove a liner to left, sending McKenna and Anthony home. After this not a Shoemaker got past first base, and only one, in the eighth inning, did a visitor go as far as second.

BLACKSTONE WINS TWO OUT OF THREE VIRGINIANS SHOW UP WELL

Captures Majority of Games Played With All-Collegians, of Kentucky.

Armistead Makes Fine Record as a Pitcher—Features of the Games.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

BLACKSTONE, VA., August 24.—The Blackstone baseball team played the All-Collegians ball team, of Kentucky, a series of three games here this week, winning two of the three. The home team won the first game by a score of 5 to 0. Armistead did the pitching for the home team, and held the visitors to one lone hit. Batteries: Blackstone, Armistead and Churn; Kentucky, Caudill and Elgin. Hits made by Blackstone, 8; by Kentucky, 1. Errors—Blackstone, 1; Kentucky, 4. Struck out—by Armistead, 12; by Caudill, 7. The second game, played on Tuesday, was won by Kentucky by a score of 3 to 2. Blackstone losing on errors. Batteries—Blackstone, Griffin and Churn; Kentucky, Stevens and Elgin. Struck out—by Griffin, 5; by Stevens, 4. Hits—Blackstone, 4; Kentucky, 3. Errors—Blackstone, 3; Kentucky, 4.

The third and last game of the series was won by Blackstone by a score of 4 to 3. The feature of which was the slashing three-bagger of Griffin in the seventh, which scored two runs and won the game. Batteries: Blackstone, Pritchard and Churn; Kentucky, Reed and Elgin. Hits—Blackstone, 7; Kentucky, 8. Struck out—by Pritchard, 5; by Reed, 5. Errors—Blackstone, 0; Kentucky, 4.

The notable features of these games were the pitching of Armistead, in the first game for the home team, and the fielding throughout the series of Inge at second and Longnecker at first for the Kentuckians. Blackstone is the strongest team which has visited here this season. They have been on a trip from their native State to the Jamestown Exposition, playing ball to pay expenses, and in two months of travel and over forty games played in Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, Maryland and Virginia, have lost only a half dozen games, and two of them to the Blackstone team. The team is composed of players from the University of Kentucky and other Kentucky colleges.

Several of the best shots in the country will be in attendance, and those who see a good shooting can spend a pleasant day by doing this. Admission to the grounds is free.

Mr. P. J. Flippin, of Harris Flippin & Company, will be pleased to give any information desired relative to the shooting.

On next Saturday the Deep Run Hunt Club will hold a preliminary shoot, and all trap-shooters are invited to attend. There will be a contest for the trophy of the Richmond Gun Club on next Saturday. Yesterday's scores follow:
